Part B: Alignment of Intellectual Contributions with Mission

Mission: The JMSB prepares a diverse population of learners for meaningful careers and service through innovative business education, impactful research, and engagement with the communities we serve.

The JMSB acknowledges and appreciates all forms of research across all disciplines and interdisciplinary and encourages a mix of research activities that correspond with the interests and unique talents of the faculty while also supporting our mission. Along with the 67% applied ICs, faculty also produced 16% and 17% basic and teaching and learning ICs, respectively.

Part C: Quality of Intellectual Contributions

The JMSB emphasizes that faculty publish in PRJs that are indexed by Cabells Journalytics with an acceptance rate of 50% or less (refer to Faculty Qualifications Criteria in upload in myAccreditation) or approved journals through an informal internal process. Forty-one of the 54 articles published in PRJs are indexed in Cabells (refer to Table C-1). Of these 41 PRJs, 16 are in journals with an acceptance rate of 20% or less, and 24 are in journals with an acceptance rate of 21-40%, and one PRJ is in a journal with an acceptance rate of 41-50%. Two other PRJs are indexed in the prestigious Australian Business Deans Council (ABDC) list (see Table C-2). Eleven are indexed in both Cabells and ABDC. Ten PRJs are in other refereed journals approved by exceptions. Exceptions were granted when journals were shown to be indexed in other databases (i.e., Scopus), recognized by peer and/or aspirant schools, or widely recognized as peer reviewed industry publications.

Table C-1. Cabells Quality Measurement of Faculty Peer-Reviewed Journal Articles

Quality Measurement	Number of Faculty Articles	Percentages
20% or less	16	39.1%
21% to 40%	24	58.5%
41% to 50%	1	2.4%
Overall Total	41	100%

Table C-2. Quality Measurements of Faculty Peer-Reviewed Journal Articles

Quality Measurement	Number of Faculty Articles	Percentages
Listed in Cabells, not ABDC	31	57.4%
Listed in ABDC, not Cabells	2	3.7%
Listed in Cabells and ABDC	11	20.4%
Exception Granted PRJs	10	18.5%
Overall Total	54	100%

Part D: Impact of Intellectual Contributions

Business faculty members research impact is demonstrated by the number and quality of ICs totaling 163 over the five-year reporting period. Included in this number are 54 peer-reviewed journal articles, multiple books, cases, and chapters, and numerous conference proceedings. The impact of these JMSB faculty ICs is also evident from the quality of the journal outlets mentioned in Part C. In addition, the impact of faculty research is evidenced by citations of published works (see Table D-1).

These three retired faculty accounted for an additional citation count for JMSB Business Division faculty of 3,237 citations according to Google Scholar, with 1,664 citations since 2018. Research Gate reported these three faculty members having accounted for 1,250 citations. Likewise, these three had an average h-index of 17.33 or 12.67 since 2018, and a i10-index of 26.67 and an i10-index of 16.33 since 2018. Their Research Gate reported h-index was an average 11.67. Their Average Research Index Score was 658.10, and the Total Number of Reads was 210,241 for an average of 70,080 reads per faculty member. These three retired faculty members also accounted for 180 recommendations, or an average 60 per faculty member.

Finally, as shown in the faculty CVs, research impact is evident from research awards (see Table D-3) including outstanding research and best paper awards, engagement in journal editorships, editorial boards and ad hoc reviewer services, textbook publications, presentations on research at events, and stakeholder outreach, just to name a few.

ICs Impacting Society

Table D-4 shows select exemplars of scholarly activity that have had positive societal impact on industry, academia, student learning, and public policy. JMSB faculty have an innate ability to conduct research that is relevant to this array of stakeholders. Those in industry who are operating local businesses and providing economic growth for the region have a direct link to JMSB’s ICs. Whether by attending the Women in Entrepreneurship Conference, collaborating with faculty to explore a specific phenomenon, or benefiting from the dissemination of knowledge in the JMSB Newsletter or faculty speaking engagements, the ICs from the faculty are being utilized for guidance. As evidenced through citation counts, the ICs at JMSB are being shared and referenced by colleagues throughout academia. Students benefit from these ICs by developing critical thinking skills when solving business cases published by JMSB faculty. Further, JMSB students have opportunities to collaborate with faculty on undergraduate and graduate research projects, enabling students to grow their passion for research and present papers during regional and national conferences.

Table D-4. Select Examples of ICs Creating Societal Impact

Scholarly Activity	Societal Impact
Whitlock, David W., Hampton, Ashley, and Campbell, Kitty (2023). Mentoring Women Entrepreneurs: Perceived Needs and Benefits, Journal of Business & Entrepreneurship : 33(1), Article 3.	Recipient of the Association for Small Business and Entrepreneurship Outstanding Paper Award. Dr. Whitlock and his research partners have applied their research to the development of the Women in Entrepreneurship Conference held annually at SE by the JMSB and OSBDC. (Societal Impact Initiative: Community Engagement)

Lin, Y., Kernek, C. and Richards, R. (2021). Outfox the Investor. Association of Small Business and Entrepreneurship Annual Meeting . April 2021.	Dr. Lin and his research partners transformed the results of their academic and applied research into beneficial knowledge and management practice for a local entrepreneur. The case study results, along with a financial model for decision making was shared with the business owner. The owner utilized the model to influence his strategic decision and strategy thus the applied research became beneficial knowledge and management practice for the business, industry, economy and society at large. (Societal Impact Initiative: Community Engagement)
Cisneros, L., Chappel, M., Garai, P., & Risher, J. J. (2020, November). Providing Sustainability through Flexibility: Mitigating the Economic Impact of COVID-19 on the Restaurant Industry. Atlantic Marketing Association Annual Conference , Virtual.	Dr. Risher co-authored two peer-reviewed presentations that were accepted to Atlantic Marketing Annual Conference in 2020 based on research projects given in Data Analysis for Managers (BUS 5253). Two teams were accepted and those students made the presentations. 5 students attended and presented the papers and their travel was funded by the JMSB. (Societal Impact Initiative: Empowering Education)
Parmer, Lucinda. 2020. "Reviving Rebekah's Operational Plan." Journal of Business Management Dynamics , 10(02), 12-19.	Dr. Parmer transforms the results of her academic and applied research into beneficial knowledge and management practice for JMSB learners. This case study is used in the Small Business Management (BUS 3343) class as a team project. Student results are shared with the business owner and the applied research becomes beneficial knowledge and management practice for the business, industry, economy and society at large. (Societal Impact Initiative: Empowering Education and Community Engagement)
Richards, R. Ingram, K., and Kernek, C. (2020). Iron Fed: If We Build It, Will They Come? Journal of Innovation & Sustainability , 15(8), 40-56.	Recipient of the Association for Small Business and Entrepreneurship Outstanding Paper Award. Drs. Kernek, Richards and Ingram analyzed and provided feedback to a local entrepreneur on the options to expand their cross fit gym. The owners then took the recommendation to expand to the local bank for a loan. They also utilized the Oklahoma Small Business Development Center at Southeastern for guidance with business decisions. They were approved for the loan and expanded their business to more than double the size of the original business. (Societal Impact Initiative: Community Engagement)

Stevens, R., Silver, L., Whitlock, D. and Richards, R. (2022) Cajun Fest. Southwest Case Research Association Annual Meeting, March, 2022.	Recipient of the Southwest Case Research Distinguished Paper Award. The events planning committee of Celina used the results of the case to address two important issues-marketing. They expanded their marketing efforts to target more populated areas south of Celina, Prosper and Frisco, Texas with increased promotional efforts of the event. (Societal Impact Initiative: Empowering Education and Community Engagement)
