TEXT Complex Analysis for Mathematics and Engineering (6th edition), J. Matthews and R. Howell, ISBN # 9781449604455

COURSE OVERVIEW In this course, we will introduce ourselves to the fundamental concepts of the field of complex analysis. In particular, we will study, in depth, topics such as complex numbers; complex functions – including harmonic, and analytic functions; complex sequences and series – including Taylor and Laurent series; complex integration – including integrals, contour integrals, and residue theory; complex transformation and mappings. Other topics will be included, but the major emphasis will be on the aforementioned subjects.

COURSE OUTLINE See the schedule.pdf document on the website for a day-to-day description of what we will cover.

ASSIGNMENTS Homework will be assigned on a section-by-section basis and will be collected two classes after the section is completed in class (so a section finished on Tuesday will be collected on the following Tuesday, for example). There will be time in each class to take questions on homework from any section. Each homework section will be given a grade, and the resulting average is worth 75% of the course grade. Not every problem on a given homework will be graded.

The final will be cumulative and will consist of both an in-class and a take home portion. The in-class portion of the final will be on 2018.05.10, from 8:00-10:00. The final will count for 25% of your final grade.

GRADES Your final grade will be based upon the following items

- 75% - Section homework assignments
- 25% - Final exam

POLICIES Cheating will not be tolerated in any shape or form. If you are caught cheating, it will be reported to the appropriate academic offices, and appropriate action will be pursued.

All cell phones, laptops, calculators and other such devices must be turned off and put away before class begins. If you are caught using a cell phone during class, your final grade will be dropped by one letter grade per incident. It is also expected that everyone will behave in a kind and courteous manner towards fellow students and the instructor.

I reserve the right to change any policies as I see fit to ensure that you are indeed receiving the best possible education that I can give you in the subject matter at hand. If I feel a certain aspect of the course does not appear to be effective in its method, I will attempt to change it (for the better I hope).
