

Acknowledgements

Putting together the conference every other year is a large undertaking requiring the assistance of many here in the Southeastern community, including faculty, staff, students, and local residents. Our heartfelt thanks go out to all who have contributed to this success in any way large or small.

This year we were privileged to host Dr. Brad R. Lieb, Cultural Resources Specialist for the Chickasaw Nation Division of Historic Preservation, as our keynote banquet speaker. The demonstration of Choctaw Social Dancing was provided by Curtis Billy and the Bill Family of Broken Bow Oklahoma, while the original play To Us It Wasn't Code, written by Randy Prus and directed by Kathleen Hardgrove, was performed by Brenner Billy, Twahna Hamill, Michael Noah, Ethan Ruth, and Chantelle Standefer. Over a forty papers, presentations, and readings on a wide variety of Native American topics were delivered in the regular symposium sessions by professors, graduate students, independent scholars, and creative writers from across the United States and beyond. Our gratitude and appreciation extend to each and every one of them.

Special thanks are in order for the members of the Native American Symposium Committee, including Director Chris Wesberry, Jennifer Kemp, and Emily Patterson all from the Native American Center for Student Success. Dr. Gleny Beach organized the exhibit from Southeastern's two permanent Native collections: Charles & Miriam Hogan Native American Art Works and the newly acquired Keithley Collection of Native American Art Works. Institutional support was generous and enthusiastic, for which we thank Camille Phelps, former Dean of Students, Lucretia Scoufos, Executive Dean for Academic Affairs, Sharon Robinson, Vice President for Student Affairs, Bryon Clark, Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs, Douglas McMillan, Vice President for Academic Affairs, and Larry Minks, former President of the University.

Our primary in-house source of financial support was the Southeastern Cultural and Scholastic Lectureship Fee Committee, a fund collected from and administered by the students of Southeastern Oklahoma State University. Other support was generously provided by the Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma, the Native American Center for Student Success, and the Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma Scholarship Advisement Program.

We would also like to acknowledge the helpful assistance of Dennis Miles of the Henry G. Bennett Memorial Library, who maintains our website, and Jason Hicks, Composition & Graphics Specialist of Southeastern Printing Services for printing these proceedings.
